

Sample of how the Shakespeare speech might look before the students begin to work on it. Do you think you and your partner(s) can put in the correct order? Use Copy and Paste (NOT CUT and PASTE) to insert the correct order in the discussion below. By-the-way, you may have to “clean up” the copy and paste. Doesn’t always work like we wish it would. You are on your honor to not look at others’ answers before you place your own in the comments. And no fair consulting Google. This is an excellent exercise in close reading. I will show you the correct order when everyone is done.

The pine and cedar: graves at my command
Have waked their sleepers, oped, and let 'em forth
By my so potent art. But this rough magic
I here abjure, and, when I have required
I'll drown my book.

When he comes back; you demi-puppets that
By moonshine do the green sour ringlets make,
Whereof the ewe not bites, and you whose pastime
Is to make midnight mushrooms, that rejoice

Set roaring war: to the dread rattling thunder
Have I given fire and rifted Jove's stout oak
With his own bolt; the strong-based promontory
Have I made shake and by the spurs pluck'd up

Ye elves of hills, brooks, standing lakes and groves,
And ye that on the sands with printless foot
Do chase the ebbing Neptune and do fly him

Some heavenly music, which even now I do,
To work mine end upon their senses that

To hear the solemn curfew; by whose aid,
Weak masters though ye be, I have bedimm'd
The noontide sun, call'd forth the mutinous winds,
And 'twixt the green sea and the azured vault

This airy charm is for, I'll break my staff,
Bury it certain fathoms in the earth,
And deeper than did ever plummet sound
